

Call for Papers 6th CEPR-Bank of Italy Workshop: Labour market policies and institutions

Hosted by the Bank of Italy, Rome – September 18-19, 2023 Submission Deadline: 6 pm (GMT) May 12, 2023

The 6th CEPR-Bank of Italy Workshop: Labour market policies and institutions will take place in Rome on September 18-19, 2023. The aim of the workshop is to bring together leading and emerging labour economists.

Although we invite submissions on a broader set of topics, we particularly welcome papers on:

- Wage setting: minimum wages, unions, collective bargaining, payroll taxes, hiring subsidies
- Institutions that increase the resilience of the labour markets to shocks: short-term work schemes, unemployment benefits
- Policies aimed at fostering labour supply: family-friendly and migration policies, pension reforms
- Institutions that improve the matching of workers to jobs: active labour market policies, on-the-job training
- Anti-poverty programs: basic income schemes, income subsidies

Keynote speakers will be Daron Acemoğlu (MIT and CEPR) and Alessandra Voena (Stanford University and CEPR).

Funding:

The workshop will take place in the Bank of Italy headquarter in Rome. Financial support to all speakers for economy class air travel (in accordance with the CEPR Travel guidelines) and accommodation will be provided. In order to foster the desired interaction, participants are required to stay for the entire duration of the workshop. The programme will start on Monday morning (September 18) and end on Tuesday afternoon (September 19).

How to apply:

The application deadline is 6 pm (GMT) on Friday May 12, 2023. Decisions of acceptance or rejection by the programme committee will be announced by the end of May.
